

Your Plan - to Restore Your Car

We all know it takes a good plan to accomplish any goal. But, for some reason we tend to bypass that most important item when we start to "restore" our car. If you will actually complete your restoration, within a reasonable time and reasonable cost, it will require an excellent detailed written plan before you begin.

This is not an easy thing to do. It will take time and your best effort to properly plan and document your restoration.

You will need to plan the many details of your goal and evaluate each and every task that needs to be done. All of the work to be done must be documented in detail. All parts requiring rebuilding or replacement must be identified and scheduled in the proper order. Where will you obtain all the tools, parts, supplies and services you will need? You will need to determine how much of the work you can do yourself and how much work will be done by outside shops. All of this must be researched and accurately priced out in order to determine how much it will cost to obtain your dream.

Can you really afford what you want?

This is an very time-consuming process but absolutely critical to any successful restoration.

For complete in-depth direction for making these decisions, read the multi-page "Steps 4 & 5" in Kaiser Bill's new Book "40 Steps to a Successful Restoration."
